

Weymouth to attend on the 17th inst. should they be inclined to go on the water. According to letters from Gibraltar, received this morning, a Spanish Squadron, consisting of seven men of war, had entered the Mediterranean; four of them are of the line; the largest, the San Nicholas, of 70 guns, is the flag-ship.

Yesterday, Lord Hood finding he had much the worst of the business, gave up all ideas of getting into Parliament as Representative for Westminster.

Thus have the independent Electors triumphed over all the wealth of the Treasury, and the influence of Administration.

"Though all the winds of Heaven shall enter the ragged cabin of the poor peasant, the King shall not, the King dare not enter it," said the late Earl of Chatham, reproaching Excise Laws; but the meanest knave, that cheats the public, as an excise officer, not only dares, but SHALL enter and search, not merely every house, but every crevice of it, if he choose, says the late Earl of Chatham's son.

On Saturday morning was married at St. George's Hanover-square, Henry Lefanu, Esq; to Miss Sheridan, sister of R. B. Sheridan, Esq;

DUBLIN, JULY 11.

Their Excellencies the Lords Justices, we can assure our readers, have peremptorily shut the ports of this kingdom against the exportation of wheat and flour, on any pretence whatever. Biscuit is also included in this proscription.

Lord Mornington, we hear, is appointed Joint Paymaster of the forces in England, vacated by Mr. Grenville in his promotion to the Secretaryship of State.

Seventy thousand pieces of linen were sold at the late market, more than was sold at last October market.

The application of the French Ambassador to the British Minister, and the prospect of being nearly complied with, marks the humanity of the present æra. There was a time when no such concession would take place, from an improper jealousy and distrust of each other, which led to recriminations of a very disagreeable nature. England experienced a great scarcity of grain during the reign of Charles the First, and an embargo was laid on the export of grain from any of the Spanish ports to that country. Ireland suffered in a pretty similar manner during the same period. It happened, however, that in five years after, Spain was in the like predicament, when the English ports were shut, by way of recrimination, against any exportations. Though the British harvest was then good, an improper principle of retaliation took place. It is however hoped, that the wants of the French, in this time of national distress, may be relieved, provided grain can, with internal safety, be properly spared.

We may venture to say, that France is nearly a free country: What time it will take, and what difficulties they will find in fixing their constitution, it is impossible to conjecture:— This, however, we may safely assert, without the spirit of prophecy, that the permanent welfare of Great Britain will depend on the wisdom of the plan they shall choose.

"While he who robs nations lies quiet in bed; Would man but adjudge, without favour or ballings, He'd take down the Fox, and tuck up vile Hastings!"

DIED. The 7th inst. Pat. Bellew, Esq; of Abbey-street.— On Saturday last, Mr. Jonathan Carlton, of Carlow, one of the people called Quakers, and husband to Mrs. Phœbe Carlton, who died the preceding day. After an union of 40 years, only a few hours separated their exit, and one herse and funeral procession attended them to the grave on Monday. 'Tis said to have been their mutual and frequent wish, that one should not survive the other.—Mrs. Hamilton, wife of John Hamilton, Esq; of Belfast.

NATURAL LAW.

EOLUS and IRIS—versus the Farmers.

'Tis said on the first day of August, the Farmers of Europe propose to bring on a motion in the Cerean Chancery for a new summer— The motion is grounded on a petition wherein they state their humble apprehensions that in the meteorological proceedings of the last quarter, which must principally govern the success of their agricultural tryal—the months of January, February, and March have been reinserted by mistake, instead of the months of April, May and June, which have been wholly omitted. On this ground they object to the abiding an autumnal issue; and pray that the plaintiffs, Eolus and Iris, may be nonsuited, with costs, and that a new writ of buds and blossoms may be issued, and the proceedings commenced de novo.

COUNTRY NEWS.

Cork, July 9 The first Mail Coach from Dublin, arrived here at seven o'clock yesterday morning, bringing two English Mails from Waterford and one from Dublin, and this morning it arrived at seven. The passengers are highly pleased with the horses, drivers and inns, and the scheme bids fair for that encouragement due to the Proprietors of so extensive and arduous an undertaking.

Married. Yesterday, John Deane, of Dublin, Esq; to Miss Sarah Kift, daughter to Thomas Kift, Esq; of this city.

Ennis, July 9. Last Saturday as the Rev. Thomas Jameson, of Dublin, and another gentleman, were proceeding through the village of O'Callaghan's Mills, he complained of sudden illness, and lighting from his horse, had just time to seat himself on a chair in the next house, from which he immediately fell and expired.

LIMERICK.

DUBLIN CASTLE, July 6, 1789.

Letters Patent have been passed under the Great Seal of this kingdom, containing a grant unto the Right Hon. John Fitzgibbon, Chancellor of his Majesty's kingdom of Ireland, and the heirs male of his body, of the dignity of a Baron, by the name, style and title of Baron Fitzgibbon, of Lower Conello, in the county of Limerick.

poled of that manufacture.

A grand Cricket match is now in contemplation, to be played in the King's Island the last day of our Races, between eighteen Gentlemen, who weigh eighteen stone each; the stake will be ten guineas each man, the City of Limerick against All Ireland.

The Mail Coaches give such superior advantages to our posts in point of expedition and security; that it must appear highly necessary to the Merchants and Citizens of Limerick, to establish by subscription a Mail Coach to Dublin three days in the week, which cannot fail of success. By which means we may have our Letters three days by Birr as usual, and three days by the direct road Maryborough, and Roscrea by the Mail Coach.

We hear from good authority, that the Babe and Butler, who were lately transmitted from hence to Dublin, and there transported, have made their escape from the vessel, and were seen lurking on the North-strand last Thursday.

Thursday evening the Rt. Rev. Dr. Foster Lord Bishop of Cork, and Thomas Burgh, Esq; Accountant General, arrived in town, and next day set out for Dublin.

Same day, a vessel was freighted by Mr. Honan with wheat for Rotterdam, the first that ever sailed from this Port. Holland was the grand mart for corn, but the wisdom of our Legislature in promoting and encouraging agriculture, will soon be found to form the real wealth of this kingdom.

Same day died at Thomond-gate, the wife of Bryan O'Loughlin, aged 108 years; she retained her faculties entire, to the day previous to her dissolution.

Same night, John Cudmore, Esq; Coach-house at Ballycane was broke open, and the Servant's chest plundered of several articles of wearing apparel.

Saturday a detachment of the 15th Infantry marched into town from Carrickfergus, and this morning proceeded to join their regiment in Kerry.

Same evening, the Right Hon. Lord Viscount Pery, arrived at the Bishop's Palace at Newtown-Pery; as did, on Sunday, Edmond Henry Pery, Esq; one of the Members for this City—from Dublin.

Good Pavers will meet with Encouragement by applying to the Mayor.

DIED: Last Friday, near Castle-street, much regretted, the wife of Mr. Jere Molony, grocer.
