the Mails between Dublin and this City, and for the establishment of Mail Coaches between Cork, Waterford, and this City.

The County Limerick Grand Jury have voted the following sums:—

To the House of Industry,	£500
Lunatic Asylum,	300
Fever Hospital,	300
County Infirmary,	200

John Percy, Esq. Agent to the West England Insurance Company, has been appointed Secretary to the City Grand Jury, vacant by the resignation of D. F. G. Mahony, Esq.—Office, No. 40, Patrick-street.

At Maryborough Assizes the following convictions took place:—Michael Dempsey, for sacking the gate-keeper's house of Sir Charles Coote, Bart. to be hanged; John Butterfield, for pigeoning, to be hanged; John Kelly and John [illegible], butchers, for assaulting Orangeman in Mitcath, on the 12th instant; Simon Shorthall and John Whelan, for a riot at Mountmellick on same day; Patrick Murphy, for burglary, death; [illegible] Whelahan, for cow-stealing, death; William Daniel, Laurence, and Eliza Moore, for stabbing John O'Neill, a Revenue Officer; John Quinn, for the murder of John Hooley, death.

The Grand Jury voted £1043 to the Sheriff for the sundry expences at the last Election, though the Carlow Paper states, that Sir Henry Parnell's calculation was about £230.

The Earl of Clare has arrived at Mount-Shannon.

The Friendly Brothers of St. Patrick of Cheltenham, have presented an elegant Silver Urn, surmounted with Shamrocks, and tastefully ornamented with the Union Wreath to their President, Christopher Cole, Esq. of Cork, with an appropriate inscription, as a token of their regard.

The Archbishop of Dublin held his Visitation at Dublin, on Tuesday, and at Carlow, on Wednesday.

Accounts have been received, announcing the death of the Bishop of Cloyne. Rumour, as usual upon events occurring such as the present, bestows, and elevates as she pleases, without regard to probability. Several arrangements appear to have been made, and a number of names are already announced as likely to fill the vacancy.

The Pope has nominated the Rev. Dr. Pat. M'Gettigan, to be Titular Bishop of the Diocese of Raphoe, in room of the Right Rev. Doctor M'Laughlin, transferred to the See of Derry.

The Lord Chancellor has appointed the [illegible] Henry Richard Dawson and Richard Eaton, [illegible] of Castle Comer, to be Justices of the Peace [illegible] the County of Kilkenny.

Thursday, three troops of the 18th Hussars, under Major Croker, marched hence for Dublin, and in the course of the day were replaced by the Scotch Greys, under command of Lieut.-Colonel Hankin.

Twenty-nine fine recruits, raised in Edinburgh, Glasgow, and Perth, for the 79th Highlanders, arrived here on Thursday.

The 38th Regiment stationed at Castlebar, continue to expect a route for Dublin. The 78th from Athlone, it is understood, will replace them, in less than a fortnight.

The 91st Regiment have arrived at Enniskillen and Cavan.

The 2d Royal Veteran Battalion, under Major Bellinger, sailed from Ireland, to Portsmouth, on Monday. They are to be replaced by the 10th Veteran Battalion, now stationed at Cork.

GENERAL ORDER.

Horse-Guards, July 8, 1829.

The Commander-in-Chief has had occasion to notice the [illegible] practice adopted in several instances, by the Officers of the Army, of wearing plain clothes at their Regimental Quarters, and this irregularity having caused a serious obstruction to discipline upon a particular and recent occasion, in a Regiment of Cavalry, stationed in the North of England, his Royal Highness deems it essential to enjoin Officers commanding Districts and Regiments, to take special care, that no Officers under their command shall ever appear at their quarters without their uniform.—By command of his Royal Highness the Commander-in-Chief.

H. TORRENS, Adjutant-General.

Wednesday, at three o'clock, the foundation stone of the new Custom-house Quays and Dock, at Waterford, now building by order of Government, was laid in presence of a large concourse of spectators, of Ladies and Gentlemen, by the Mayor, attended by the Sheriffs and the Deputy Recorder, in their full costume.

On Wednesday last, Thady Farrell, of Castle-street, a whip-seller, cut his throat; he survived until yesterday, when he died in the County [illegible]

Regular Quarterly Pe[illegible] will be required in future

H. ALLEN

Kilrush, July 28.

ENNIS SCHOOL.

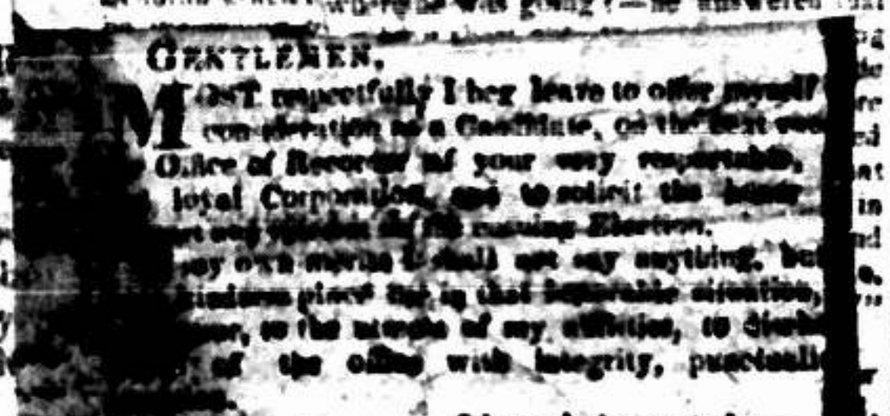
Vacation will [illegible]d on the 1st of August.

July 28.

EXECUTION OF SULLIVAN.

On Thursday, at [illegible] o'clock in the afternoon, Stephen Sullivan, whose trial and conviction for the murder of Ellen Healy, on the Shrove[illegible] we gave in our last, was taken from the City jail to Gallows-green, for execution. The population assembled on this occasion were more than ordinary, owing to the great interest excited by the commission of so abominable a murder, and it having been generally circulated that the criminal would make a confession of the tragic circumstances, in which he himself was the principal actor, and the only person willing there could do so.—His countenance underwent considerable change [illegible] since his trial—it was marked with guilt and care, penitence and sorrow. When he arrived at the place of execution he continued a long time in prayer with his Clergymen, and was at one period so weak, that it was necessary to get him a drink of water; he then ascended the platform, in rather a native manner, and evincing a disposition to express himself as to the part he took in the horrid deed, several gentlemen exercised the gallows, when the Rev. Mr. Enright addressed him thus—"Now, Sullivan, remember that you are going before the Almighty God, and recollect that the damnation of your soul will be the consequence, if you tell a lie as to the murder of Ellen Healy, more particularly as it involves the character of another. You can have no interest, but to tell the truth, so in the name of God, as you hope for salvation, tell what you know."

Sullivan then delivered himself nearly as follows:—"I declare, before the Almighty God, that I am guilty of the murder, but that it was Mr. Scanlan who put me up it—it was after he came from Dublin I saw him, as I was myself returned from the country—I heard he went off with [illegible], and I went to see him, when he and I took a walk on the strand, and, after some conversation, he said he should get rid of the girl; he was at me then for some days before I consented, which I unfortunately did—he then bought a boat from one Patrick Keays, for the express purpose of destroying her, and got an iron chain and ring made by a smith in Kilrush, to tie round her neck. Ellen Walsh, Mitchell, and [illegible] persons, came with us in the boat from Kilrush to Carrig-Island, where we stopped all night—Mr Scanlan and I went to Ballylongford, and brought some spirits, and that day was intended to murder her, between Carrig-Island and Moneypoint—Mr. Scanlan went out of the boat, in order that while he was absent I should have it done, but when I looked in her innocent face, my heart shuddered, and I did not know how I could do it!—When Mr. Scanlan returned, he gave me many sour looks, and was mad with me because I did not murder her—I then went out of the boat, and bought [illegible] shillings worth of bread, a pound of butter, and about three half-pints of whiskey, and we staid out that night 'till next morning—we then continued that day together, (it was the third day, and not the second, as sworn,) when Mr. Scanlan got up to go out of the boat, Mrs. Scanlan asked him where he was going?—he answered that [illegible]



GENTLEMEN,

MOST respectfully I beg leave to offer myself for your consideration as a Candidate, on the next vacancy in the Office of Recorder of your very respectable, loyal Corporation, and to solicit the honour of your suffrages during the ensuing Election.

In my own name I shall not say anything, but I [illegible] gentlemen place me in that honorable situation, I pledge myself, to the utmost of my abilities, to discharge the duties of the office with integrity, punctuality [illegible]

I have the honor to be,
Gentlemen,
Your very obedient humble Ser[illegible]

July 18, 1829. JAMES THOMAS DIC[illegible]

but that he certainly knew the ring spoken of.

After some pause, the unhappy man said, that it was the neglect of his religious duties which led him to the commission of this act; for had he abided by the advice of his Clergy, he would not meet this unhappy end—and he left his example, to all who saw and heard him, would be sufficient warning to attend to their religious duties.

He continued to pray most fervently, hoping "that the great God would forgive him his sins"—when he found the cart moving, he yielded to the rope, and let his body fall gently off, distinctly saying, "The Lord have mercy upon me." He died without the appearance of a struggle, and after hanging the time prescribed, was cut down, and his body conveyed to the County Hospital for dissection.

After his conviction on Tuesday, he made a full and free admission of his guilt in the fact, in presence of many persons, and described the mode of her destruction. When the boat was about the centre of the river, he stood up, and took a musket in his hand, with which he made a blow at her head, but having missed, struck her in the arm, which was broken—he then beat her with the gun till she was quite dead, and afterwards tied her right leg to her neck, to which a large stone was attached, and flung the body into the river, which sunk immediately.

THE MASQUERADE

The Masquerade at the New Theatre on Thursday night last, was very numerously attended. The Theatre was got up in the best style. The pit was entirely boarded in, getting with the stage a platform of 75 feet in length. The whole was most tastefully and elegantly decorated with evergreens, artificial flowers and flowering shrubs, and illuminated with wax lights, wreaths of variegated lamps, and Egyptian lanterns.

The Characters were in general well sustained: amongst those we remarked Mr B, as a young lady of fashion, remarkably well supported. He danced several waltzes and cotillons in the best style.—Capt. R. with a recruiting party, consisting of Mr S. corporal, Mr O. drummer, Mr [illegible], Captain R. a black symbol player, Mr H. R. a coal re-

WEDNESDAY.

Regular Quarterly Pe[illegible] will be required in future

H. ALLEN

Kilrush, July 28.

ENNIS SCHOOL.

Vacation will [illegible]d on the 1st of August.

July 28.

EXECUTION OF SULLIVAN.

On Thursday, at [illegible] o'clock in the afternoon, Stephen Sullivan, whose trial and conviction for the murder of Ellen Healy, on the Shrove[illegible] we gave in our last, was taken from the City jail to Gallows-green, for execution. The population assembled on this occasion were more than ordinary, owing to the great interest excited by the commission of so abominable a murder, and it having been generally circulated that the criminal would make a confession of the tragic circumstances, in which he himself was the principal actor, and the only person willing there could do so.—His countenance underwent considerable change [illegible] since his trial—it was marked with guilt and care, penitence and sorrow. When he arrived at the place of execution he continued a long time in prayer with his Clergymen, and was at one period so weak, that it was necessary to get him a drink of water; he then ascended the platform, in rather a native manner, and evincing a disposition to express himself as to the part he took in the horrid deed, several gentlemen exercised the gallows, when the Rev. Mr. Enright addressed him thus—"Now, Sullivan, remember that you are going before the Almighty God, and recollect that the damnation of your soul will be the consequence, if you tell a lie as to the murder of Ellen Healy, more particularly as it involves the character of another. You can have no interest, but to tell the truth, so in the name of God, as you hope for salvation, tell what you know."

Sullivan then delivered himself nearly as follows:—"I declare, before the Almighty God, that I am guilty of the murder, but that it was Mr. Scanlan who put me up it—it was after he came from Dublin I saw him, as I was myself returned from the country—I heard he went off with [illegible], and I went to see him, when he and I took a walk on the strand, and, after some conversation, he said he should get rid of the girl; he was at me then for some days before I consented, which I unfortunately did—he then bought a boat from one Patrick Keays, for the express purpose of destroying her, and got an iron chain and ring made by a smith in Kilrush, to tie round her neck. Ellen Walsh, Mitchell, and [illegible] persons, came with us in the boat from Kilrush to Carrig-Island, where we stopped all night—Mr Scanlan and I went to Ballylongford, and brought some spirits, and that day was intended to murder her, between Carrig-Island and Moneypoint—Mr. Scanlan went out of the boat, in order that while he was absent I should have it done, but when I looked in her innocent face, my heart shuddered, and I did not know how I could do it!—When Mr. Scanlan returned, he gave me many sour looks, and was mad with me because I did not murder her—I then went out of the boat, and bought [illegible] shillings worth of bread, a pound of butter, and about three half-pints of whiskey, and we staid out that night 'till next morning—we then continued that day together, (it was the third day, and not the second, as sworn,) when Mr. Scanlan got up to go out of the boat, Mrs. Scanlan asked him where he was going?—he answered that [illegible]

GENTLEMEN,

MOST respectfully I beg leave to offer myself for your consideration as a Candidate, on the next vacancy in the Office of Recorder of your very respectable, loyal Corporation, and to solicit the honour of your suffrages during the ensuing Election.

In my own name I shall not say anything, but I [illegible] gentlemen place me in that honorable situation, I pledge myself, to the utmost of my abilities, to discharge the duties of the office with integrity, punctuality [illegible]

I have the honor to be,
Gentlemen,
Your very obedient humble Ser[illegible]

July 18, 1829. JAMES THOMAS DIC[illegible]

but that he certainly knew the ring spoken of.

After some pause, the unhappy man said, that it was the neglect of his religious duties which led him to the commission of this act; for had he abided by the advice of his Clergy, he would not meet this unhappy end—and he left his example, to all who saw and heard him, would be sufficient warning to attend to their religious duties.

He continued to pray most fervently, hoping "that the great God would forgive him his sins"—when he found the cart moving, he yielded to the rope, and let his body fall gently off, distinctly saying, "The Lord have mercy upon me." He died without the appearance of a struggle, and after hanging the time prescribed, was cut down, and his body conveyed to the County Hospital for dissection.

After his conviction on Tuesday, he made a full and free admission of his guilt in the fact, in presence of many persons, and described the mode of her destruction. When the boat was about the centre of the river, he stood up, and took a musket in his hand, with which he made a blow at her head, but having missed, struck her in the arm, which was broken—he then beat her with the gun till she was quite dead, and afterwards tied her right leg to her neck, to which a large stone was attached, and flung the body into the river, which sunk immediately.

THE MASQUERADE

The Masquerade at the New Theatre on Thursday night last, was very numerously attended. The Theatre was got up in the best style. The pit was entirely boarded in, getting with the stage a platform of 75 feet in length. The whole was most tastefully and elegantly decorated with evergreens, artificial flowers and flowering shrubs, and illuminated with wax lights, wreaths of variegated lamps, and Egyptian lanterns.

The Characters were in general well sustained: amongst those we remarked Mr B, as a young lady of fashion, remarkably well supported. He danced several waltzes and cotillons in the best style.—Capt. R. with a recruiting party, consisting of Mr S. corporal, Mr O. drummer, Mr [illegible], Captain R. a black symbol player, Mr H. R. a coal re-

Live coals to the man that [illegible] [illegible] draw upon his own intellectual resources for an [illegible] we observe. This is a subject so fertile for [illegible] and would produce such a rich abundance of thought, that [illegible] space we have left open for this article [illegible] [illegible] entertainment, and Mr A. along with [illegible] it on many occasions. We, therefore, [illegible] announce to our patrons readers, that, on next Wednesday Night, this respectable young Gentleman will make his appearance for public patronage. The much admired Play of "The Slave," with the amusing Farce of "Honest Thieves," will be the Entertainments. All the Members of the Thespian Society, will manifest their regard for Mr. A. by a most efficient display on this occasion. We know that the public entertain a pleasing recollection of his merriment and humour they have been often led by his various and generous efforts—and we are quite certain they will give him a cheering house, and a rapturous farewell on Wednesday night. Want of room limits our observations, but his pretensions are too strong to need our support.

[illegible] Mr. Armstrong, from respect to Lady de Burgh, induced to postpone his Benefit to Wednesday evening next, August, when the Brethren of No. 13, will attend in costume.

CHEMICAL LECTURES.

Mr. Reid, delivered the first Lecture on the doctrine of Chemical Philosophy, in the rooms of the Limerick Institution, on Tuesday Evening last, to a highly respectable audience. His [illegible] language, combined with impressive delivery, and an accurate knowledge of Science he professes, together with a series of well-[illegible] experiments, afforded an Evening of great amusement and instruction. We understand, this gentleman has been induced, at particular request, to repeat the first Lecture on Tuesday Evening next, for which, see advertisement.

PORT NEWS.—Arrived, Harmony, Taylor, Quebec, timber and [illegible] ; Mary, Currie, Ayr, coals.

BIRTH—At Ashfield, the Lady of Colonel Henry [illegible] Clements, Leitrim Militia, of a son and heir—At Sidney Place, Cork, the Lady of the Rev. John Bennett, of a son—At Ballysheen, County Tipperary, the Lady of Sir John James Fitzgerald, Bart. of a son and heir—At Cockair-House, Fifeshire, the Lady of Lieut.-Colonel Montray, of a son—In Edinburgh, the Lady of General Dundas, of a son—At the Presidency of Bengal, the Lady of Doctor William Russell, of a daughter—The Lady of Captain Brown, [illegible] Native Infantry, of a son—On Sunday last, at Ballintubber, in this County, the Lady of Edward Busby, Esq. of a son—At Tore Abbey, the Hon. Mrs. Clifford, of a daughter.

MARRIED—At Rochdale, Sir Ragenal William Bu[illegible] Bart. of Clontarf, late of this City, to Esther, eldest daughter of the late Thomas Smith, Esq. of Castleton-Hall, in County of Lancaster—Henry W. Brien, Esq. of Lakefield, Co. Cavan, to Lilla, youngest daughter of John Norris, Esq. of Parrymount, Co. Tyrone—In Dublin, William James Moore, Esq to Mrs. Townshend, widow of the late Dr. Richard Townsend—In London, the Hon. and Rev. Richard Carleton, to Frances Louisa, daughter of E. Horton, Esq. of Catton, Derbyshire—The Rev. Henson C de Crespigny, son of Sir William C. de Crespigny, Bart. M. P. to Caroline [illegible]hurst, youngest daughter of the Lord Bishop of Norwich—In Bengal, Captain Allen Cameron, of the East India Company's service, to Mrs Anne Adams, relict of Captain Hugh Adams—At Dalleek House, County Mayo, Lieut. John Magnus, 103d Regiment, to Sophia, [illegible] of Nicholas Gamble, Esq. late of Killality, King's County—William Leslie, second son of William Peter [illegible] Esq. of Mason-Lodge, Co. Derry, to Catherine, daughter of the Rev. Thomas Pemberton, A. M. Rector of Taughboyne—At Petworth, in Sussex, Neal M'Kenny, Esq. of Dublin, to Harriet, daughter of the late George Bailey, Esq. of Holborn-street, London—At Stirling, Lieut. Lucius French, 66th Regiment, to Mary, daughter of Robert Young, Esq—At Whitesale, Scotland, Lieut. Barr, half-pay 28th Regiment, to Elizabeth, daughter of James Muir, Esq. of Jamaica—At Llanfyllin, the Rev. Edward Davies, to Sarah, daughter of the Rev. George Lewis, D. D.—Hamilton Rankin, Esq. of Dublin, to Miss Parr—At Mealiff Glebe, Co. Tipperary, the Rev. William Baker Stoney, of Oakley-park, to Frances Shirley, daughter of the Rev. John Going—On Thursday, at Six-mile-bridge, Co. Clare, Mr. Michael M'Mahon, of Kilrush, to Eliza, eldest daughter of Mr. Luke Lyteltou.

DIED—At Carrowkeel, Co. Mayo, Joseph Bourke, Esq. At Rosscarberry, aged 78, Surgeon Francis Fallon—At the County Infirmary, Galway, in an advanced age, Miss Elizabeth Perrin, upwards of fifty-two years housekeeper to that Institution—John Watson, Esq. Deputy Surveyor of Warrenpoint—At Killesandra, Co. Cavan, Mrs. Irvine, wife of Mr. T. C. Irvine, Methodist Preacher. Her death was occasioned by a fall from a jaunting car—In Castle-Hill, school mistress—At Hollymount, Mr. Patrick [illegible]—In Fleet-street, Dublin, Mrs. Reade, wife of Rob[illegible] Esq.—At Caledon, Co. Tyrone, the wife of Surgeon Alex[illegible] Hughes, R. N.—In Carlow, Mr. James Holla[illegible] High Constable of that Barony—In Dublin, Mr. Jo[illegible] Wallace, [illegible]ster—At Arundel, aged 82, Catherine, widow of the late [illegible]v. John Griffiths, of Kingston-on-Thames—At [illegible] Quilca, in [illegible]—A Chief, Rao Jaties, Lieut. Monison, 69th Regiment, and Pedron, late of the Mahratta service—At [illegible] suddenly, Philip Monckton, Esq. of Civil Service, New South Wales, Quartermaster Hugh M'Donald, 6[illegible] Regiment—On Sunday the 19th instant, in the 73th year of [illegible]age, the Right Rev. William Bro[illegible] Bishop of Cloyne; a Prelate most respectable for his learning, and most exemplary for his uprightness, benevolence and piety. He was promoted to the See of Cloyne in the year 1730. The value of his Bishopric is estimated at nearly £6,000 per annum. At Clay-Hill, near Wind[illegible] Jane, wife of Captain Lind[illegible] of the Grenadier Guards—At Borrisoleigh, on Tuesday, the 14th instant, the Rev. [illegible] M'Culloch, of the late 30th Re[illegible] the Lady of Lieut. Hen[illegible] last, the Rev. Mr. O'Brien, for many [illegible]atalion—On Thursday last, the Rev. Mr. O'Brien, for many years the respected Parish Priest of Abington—In Kilrush, Mr. Patrick Brog[illegible] late of this City—Thursday, in the C[illegible]ty of Tipperary, Richard William White, Esq.

THE MARKETS.

No alteration in the markets since our last. [illegible] Butter, which rated as follows:—78s. 74s. 6[illegible]