

A writ for a Member to serve in Parliament at Athenree, in the county Galway, was announced in Saturday's Gazette, by the Speaker, in the room of John Blakeney, deceased.

We have it from good authority, that his Majesty's approbation is certainly arrived for their promotions will appear in the Gazette in the course of this week, nothing now remaining but to be passed through the proper offices, viz.

Mr. Gardiner, Chief Justice Carleton,
Mr. Eden, Mr. Robert Stewart,
Sir Sampson Gideon, Mr. Gore,—and
Mr. Brown, of Neal, Sir Nicholas Lawless.

If a reduction of great ecclesiastical revenues be salutary for a foreign state, it can be no less so in our little island, where the enormous difference between the incomes of some Prelates and the inferior Clergy, must affect all who consider, that the same pains, long study, and academical expence, are as necessary for the Vicar or Curate, as for the Prelate who enjoys an hundred times their income.

We hear from Tralee in the county of Kerry, that the late inundation there, was of more service to his Majesty's Excise Revenues, than five hundred Inspectors armed Cap a pee, with detachments of men from all the regiments in the kingdom, assisted by the gallant Police, horse and foot, and all the Preventive Officers in Ireland—at that tremendous flood, without either the aid of a Constable, or a writ of assistance,—swept off every barrel of shebeen in the town, all the private barrels of pot ale, casks of singlings, and smuggled whiskey, as well as all the brewing pans, black pots, alembics, private stills, concealed malt, tobacco presses full of smuggled rolls of tobacco—kieves scarcely mashed, brewer-women, (for the ladies all brew there) half naked, floating about in guile tubs!—In fact, every illicit and clandestine article was clearly swept away, and carried off, not to the Custom House, but to the Lord knows whither, to the ruin of upwards of two hundred shebeeners, maltsters, and tobaccoists, as well as all the Excise Officers of the town, who have lost all their perquisites by the destruction of their unfortunate subjects, who in future, will neither be able to supply them with meat, beer, whiskey, tobacco, snuff, oysters, herrings, shrimps, perry winkles, tea, sugar, pepper, or coffee.

THE

PRICE TWO PENCE

The Address of the Governor, Foreman, and Grand Jury of the County of LIMERICK, assembled at Sum-1789.

To his Excellency JOHN Lord B. Gibbon, one of the Lords Justices High Chancellor of Ireland.

“ May it please your Excellency

“ The Public Congratulations have borne ample Testimony that your late promotion to the high and important Office of Chancellor of this Kingdom, was which not only met the general Approbation of the Nation, and of those of the Members of that honorable enlightened Profession to which you have been an Ornament, but also met the Royal Confidence in those splendid Attributes of invincible Integrity which have justly rendered you an Object of universal Admiration. Nevertheless we, your Countrymen, with your Virtues in private Life, and you by that personal Esteem they merit, and grateful for that Solicitude shewn for the improvement of the Law and Police of this Country, cannot but have a most hearty joy at your Elevation, and our hope, that as we cannot have the Honour of Delegating you to the Protection of our and most invaluable Rights in the Administration of Justice in this Isle, which accords with our glorious Constitution

MUSKERRY, Governor.
CROSBIE MORGELL, Scribe.
HUGH MASSY, Foreman, and Fellow-Jurors.

“ I REQUEST of you to accept my Thanks for your very honourable Address—It is peculiarly flattering to know, that my Appointment to the Office in this Kingdom meets the warm approbation of those whose good Opinion I have always been anxious to cultivate; and you will do me the Justice to believe, whatever Station I may be placed in, it will be my great Object, by a steady and faithful discharge of Public Duty, to merit the Marks of Confidence with which I have repeatedly favoured by you.

“ It is my peculiar Duty, as it is my V
