DUBLIN, Oct. 1.

His Excellency the Earl of Westmorland could have prolonged his visit at Mount Shannon, the seat of the Right Hon. the Lord Chancellor, but that his presence is indisputably necessary to the swearing the new Lord Mayor Alderman Sankey, into office.

There is not in Ireland a more beneficent or humane landlord than Lord Kingsborough; he is, in this respect, a laudable example to every gentleman of landed property in the country.—By mild and encouraging conduct, he has improved the soil in a degree not to be conceived, not by those who have seen its bleak and ruinous condition 16 or 17 years since, at the time that he has been the source of support and satisfaction to a numerous tenantry.

The many good and conciliating qualities of Lord Kingsborough, his urbanity, magnificence, and hospitality, cannot fail of affording the highest satisfaction to his Excellency—and must impress him with the most elevated ideas of the Irish character.

The Hon. Mr. Creighton, brother to the Earl of Essex, is appointed to be Register of Forfeitures the room of Mr. Sandfort, who accepted the place of Barrack Master of Dublin.

The adjourned session of Parliament, respecting the place of a Weigh-master of Cork, will have operation on the 29th of this month.

The place of Weigh-master of Cork, is not given away.

A successor Mr. Neil, as State surgeon is not yet appointed.

The report of General Pitt will not return, to Ireland, as Commander in Chief, gains credit.
