I have the Honour to be,

Your faithful and most humble Servant, ame day a Common Council was held, when was unanimously resolved to present the edom of this City in a Gold Box, to his cellency John Lord Baron Fitzgibbon, one the Lords Justices, and Lord High Chan-or of the kingdom of Ireland, in testimony the high opinion they entertain of his Exlency's great Virtues and Abilities, so connly exerted for the Honor and Advantage this Kingdom.

Same day, John Prendergast Smyth, Esq; one the Representatives in Parliament for this ty, gave a grand Entertainment to the Lord ancellor, Common Council, and Gentry of is City, at his house on the North Strand.
Last night there were very general Illumiions and other demonstrations of joy, on e Lord Chancellor's arrival in this City.

In his Excellency the LORD CHANCELLOR.

YE sons of envy, malice, spleen, or pride, o ye I speak, to no one else beside,
e not surpris'd that merit holds a claim, o re-assume its long sequester'd fame.
The fust'c Muse unskill'd in fawning phrase, didst dare to prostitute her humble lays To Lord NOUVELLE unless the sculptur'd stones, immortalize their kindred Heroes' bones.
Then let Killocta* but disclose her fances, Shew where her Heroes sluic'd their nervous veins,
Her massy tombs will silence saucy pride, Spleen, envy, malice, then may well subside; Register'd there, she holds FITZ-GIBBON'S name, A race of Chieftain's eterniz'd by fame;
Who bravely bled, supporting Freedom's cause,
As their Descendant's now his Country's Laws.
To extend that praise

On the night of the storm, 30th ult. a large sloop was wrecked near Cashin's bay in the co.
Kerry, three dead bodies were driven on shore and most of the wreck; three turf boats were also stranded at the co. Limerick side, one of which sunk, and the crew remained on the mast all night.

DIED. Last Monday night, sincerely regretted, Mr. David Lloyd, of Knockish, in this County.

The Address of the Bankers, Merchants and by Public Notice the 15th September, 1789.

May it please your Excellency, WHILE we behold with Pleasure and Satisfaction the happy Effects of the Law for regulating the Corn Trade, in promoting the Agriculture, encouraging the Industry, and giving Competency and Comfort to the labouring Poor of the adjacent Counties, as well as in extending the Commercial Interests of the Kingdom at large, and of this City in particular, we consider it our Duty thus to Address your Excellency for bringing forward that Law, and to return you our warmest Thanks for devising a Measure so wise in its Principle, and so salutary in its Operation.

Permit us to add, that raised as you have been by the Confidence of our Sovereign, to a Station from whence your distinguish'd Abilities, extensive Knowledge, and National Zeal, can be so happily exerted; We have the firmest reliance that the Interest of this Country will continue to be extended by a Train of Measures commensurate to your Influence, and adequate to your Capacity.

To which Address his Excellency was pleased to return the following ANSWER

DEAR SIR,
THE Address, which I have had the Honor of receiving through your Letter, does me the highest Honor.

The Approbation of Gentlemen, who understand the true Principles of Trade so well, and Practice them so extensively, is extremely flattering; and I feel an honest Pride in my Endeavours to make the Agriculture of Ireland an Object of Beneficial Trade, when the Bankers, Merchants, and Traders of the City of Limerick are pleased to say they have not been unsuccessful.

It ever has been my anxious study to promote the Commercial Interest of Ireland, and I shall feel a warmer Zeal, if possible, in any Exertions I can make, from Gratitude for the kindness of Gentlemen who have so large a share in those Interests.
Allow me to return you my best Thanks, for the kind Sentiments you are pleased to express towards me, and believe me, Dear Sir,

With the truest Regard, your very Faithful Colon, And Obedient Servant,
Sept. 21, 1789. JOHN FOSTER:
To THOMAS MAUNSELL, Esq.
