The Irish Papers, after sickening the whole world with coarse and dull polemics, have lately been administering a still more nauseous dose of scurrilous recrimination, between O'Connell and old Cobbett. If O'Connell has rather the worst of it, he really seems to have deserved what he has got. What business had he with such an auxiliary, unless it was his wish to lose the battle? The fact is, that Mr. O'Connell has no discretion, or next to none. He had no feeling for the dignity of the Catholic question, or for its character with the respectable portion of society, since, if he had, he never could have descended to grub in the veriest kennel or hog-sty, for the means of throwing filth upon political adversaries .-Having employed an instrument so offensive and disgusting as old Cobbett, can he affect surprise at any bad odour which may have been thereby communicated to himself? We hardly scruple to say, that the folly of such a friendship, succeeded by such an inconsistent enmity, has given the Irish Catholics a deeper wound than had been inflicted on them by any one of the previous imprudences and contradictions of their Kerry leader

MELANCHOLY ACCIDENT .- On Friday morning, soon -Times of Monday. after nine o'clock, we experienced a sudden gale from the north-west, which continued with great violence about half an hour. During the night there had been a heavy fall of rain; but, as the early part of the morning was calm, and the wind south-east, a number of sail boats were occupied in attending vessels in the river, going to sea, when the storm came on. The fire originated in the kitthen chimney, and at three o'clock, without any alarm having been given, communicated to the bed-room of Lord Forbes .- His Lordship must inevitably have perished, were it not that a spaniel, which invariably slept in his room, fortunately awoke him before the flames had reached his bed, but not before a great portion of the furniture in the apartment had been destroyed. The fire was principally confined to the ancient part of the Castle, and we are glad to learn that the valuable Library, Paintings, and Family Plate, have been saved.

Winter has prematurely set in, and with an inclemency unprecedented. For the last six and thirty hours it has blown, with very few intervals of cessation, a heavy gale of wind from the North West, accompanied with occasional showers of sleet and snow; and this morning the mountains of the neighbourhood of Dublin, are clothed in the grey garb of winter. Woodcocks have also made their appearance in the shrubberies within a mile or two of town, and everything combines to afford a promise of a severe season

CORK, OCTOBER 21.

This day, pursuant to Advertisement, there was held at Carey's-lane Chapel, an Aggregate Meeting of Roman Catholics. The assemblage though not very numerous, was higly respectable, and was equally composed of Gentlemen from the County as well as from the City.

G. S. Barry, Esq. presided, and stated that the meeting was convened for the purpose of deciding upon the best means of promoting the Provincial meeting at Counsellor Coppinger was then appointed Secretery, Limerick. and said he considered it unnecessary at that time to return thanks-but thought it much better to proceed to business. He accordingly read two letters which he received from the Catholic Secretary in Limerick, urging in strong and earnest terms the necessity of as many of the Cork Catholics and liberal. Protestants as could be prevailed upon to attend there, that as much force and effect as possible might be given to the Meeting, as it was the first about to take place in the kingdom. In compliance with the wishes expressed in the letter, he made communications to the Catholics individually, and several of them promised to attend. He also applied to Messrs. Beamish and Crawford, as liberal Protestants, and gentlemen whom the Catholics of Cork look up to as friends of their cause; and both regretted their inability to attend-the former from the delicate state of his health, and the latter from some private business; both however, had commissioned him (Mr. C.) when next he would proceed to Dublin, to enroll them as Members of the New Association-Not-A Lieutenant, of a Hussar Regiment, stationed at withstanding their inability to attend the Meeting, Mr. Beverley, with two officers from Hull, after a general at- Wm. Crawford, jun. immediately consented, and said he Mr. Coppinger was one from Mr. O'Connell, dated at Darrinane, in the county of Kerry, urging the necessity of a good attendance at Limerick, and announcing his intention of proceeding there by Tralee.

Mr. Farrell, after a few prefatory observations, proposed that the several Roman Catholics of the County and City, of consideration and property, whose names he had on a slip of paper, which he produced, should be appointed by the meeting to represent the Cork Catholics in

Mr. Justin M'Swiney could not agree in any proposition that would have for its object, to oblige persons to attend-and he considered that such a mode as that proposed, if adopted, would have the appearance as if coercion was to be used.

Mr. Boyle could not agree in the suggestion of the last speaker, and would advise Mr. Farrell to press his resolution. Something of this kind was called for to arouse the dormant spirit that prevailed among many of the Roman Catholics who should have come forward to attend this Meeting. He considered it a high compliment to any person who may be named to give his presence in Limerick to support the respectability and importance of this County and City. Mr. Thomas Dennehy then claimed attention, and was of opinion that a suggestion from that meeting to attend, would be as effective as if the names were put forth. He therefore moved the following resolution-RESOLVED-That this meeting do earnestly recommend to such of the Catholic Gentry of this County and City to attend at the Provincial Meeting, to be held at Limerick This motion was seconded by Mr. Bartholemew J. on Monday next.

Hackett. A desultory conversation ensued on the merits of the respective propositions, in which the Rev. Mr. England, Messrs. Roche, M'Swiney, Boyle, Dennehy, Farrell, &c. took a part. It was then proposed that Mr. Farrell's should be submitted to the Meeting, and that Mr. Dennehy's should go as an amendment-but the majority of the meeting were against this proceeding. Mr. R. O'Driscoll, here addressed a few words to the Chair, to the effect, that the latter proposition, of permitting such persons as may chose to go to the Provincial Meeting, was in his opinion the best; and if the meeting stood in need of a precedent, he had one then in his hand-it was a Resolution adopted at the Kerry Catholic Meeting, held only three days ago, which was similar to the one then proposed-and to which, among others, Mr. O'Connell's name was appended.

The Chairman then read the resolution to the meeting and some of the names that were attached to it-after which Mr. Farrell declined pressing his, and the Resolution last proposed, was put from the Chair and carried. Mr. Boyle suggested that the Catholic Gentlemen going to Limerick should understand what the opinions of the Cork Catholics were upon certain subjects. We understand Mr. Boyle alluded to the "wings," and that in the approaching discussion they should be treated of in

At a meeting of this branch on Monday week, of which his Lordship was Chairman, he stated that it particularly became a person in his station to countenance Scriptural education, now that the Committee of Education Inquiry had by their Report endeavoured to fetter the exertions of the Protestant Clergy, and to give latitude to the Clergy of the Roman Catholic persuasion. The Kildare-street Society appeared by a late regulation to have considerably fallen in with their views; and under these circumstances, he thought it his duty to support the Society for the extension of whose operations they were then assembled. The Hon. Martin Ffrench, for the last twelvemonths one of our town Magistrates, has retired from the office of Justice of the Peace. A requisition is in progress to call a meeting, to return him thanks for his upright and honorable conduct while in that situation, - Galway Paper.
