

On Saturday, his Excellency, Sir Thomas Bradford, the Com- mandant, accompanied by his Staff, re- 7th Dragoon Guards, commanded Duun, in a field near Pierhill Bar- very fine regiment, executed all its charges, &c. with admirable preci- sion to the satisfaction of his Excellency, and himself highly pleased with its and discipline.

regiment was inspected at Athlone on Monday, by Lieutenant General Sir Henry Wilson, after performing a variety of evolutions in a most correct style, the Corps was highly complimentary to the feelings of his Excellency, and expressive of his entire satisfaction with their appearance in the field. The General afterwards inspected the inte- rior of the regiment. The result of his inspection was a letter addressed to Lieutenant Colonel Sir Thomas Bradford, indicating his approbation of the state of the regiment, and requesting the officers to accept his thanks for their exertions and zeal in the performance of their various duties.

insurrection by the Negroes in the West Indies was to take place on the 1st of August. A happy discovery took place in the West Indies, and all the white houses and dwellings of the Negroes were also to be destroyed. General Sir Frederick Robinson, and half a Regiment of British Fusiliers, arrived there on the 1st of August, and joined a company of the 10th of the Own, and order was restored. — A loss of 130 out of 200 by the plague of August—all appearance of contagion, completely vanished in the West Indies.
