

by a number of persons attempting to rescue some deserters, in charge of a party of the County Limerick Militia. The military behaved with the utmost forbearance, although most grossly insulted. A serious accident had like to have occurred to one of the Sergeants of the Royal Waggon Train, by his attempting to stop an over-driven ox:—His throat was seriously lacerated by the horns of the beast, and many persons were in imminent danger.

Captain Ramsay, of the 89th regiment, who was severely wounded by a musket-ball passing through his neck at Jawa, has arrived at Osburn's Hotel, Adelphi, with four stand of French colours, which had been captured at Forts Cornelius, on the 26th of August, 1811, by the gallant army headed by the intrepid Major-General Gillespie, who has also sent home two beautiful brass 14-pounders, with suitable inscriptions, as a present to his Royal Highness the Prince Regent. The above officer has been more than eight months on his passage from Batavia, in consequence of experiencing the most dreadful gales of wind off the Cape of Good Hope, where the vessel put into in very great distress, which is the cause of those dear-bought, but noble trophies, not arriving before.

In a former number, we copied an article from the Dublin E. Post, relative to an unpleasant occurrence which took place in the county of Kerry—the following is a counter-statement, and agreeable to our undeviating principle of impartiality, we give it a place in our columns:—

To the Proprietor of The Kerry Evening Post.

SIR—However unwilling I am to trespass on public attention, the extraordinary circumstances attendant on a recent transaction in which I am concerned, renders it necessary for me to submit, though with great reluctance, the following statement, thro' the medium of your Paper:—

A Roman Catholic meeting having been held on the 1st of August last, in Tralee, and an illumination in consequence (as it is supposed) having taken place, a transparency was exhibited, expressive of much party zeal, and of a very inflammatory nature—Mr. Bateman, jun. of Oak Park, who, with other gentlemen, saw the evil tendency of such an exhibition, tore it down; the mob, who were assembled for the purpose of viewing it, were so exasperated, that they immediately proceeded to acts of violence, by knocking down some, and striking others of the most respectable gentlemen of our county. Having been called on as a Magistrate to afford assistance in quelling those disturbances, I considered it necessary, from the alarming complexion of this tumult, to call out a military force, and in order to intimidate the mob, I ordered the troops to load, and by such exertions, and the ready assistance I experienced from some of the Magistrates then present, the quiet of the town was in some degree restored before two o'clock in the morning. The next (or rather the same) morning, the town appeared still considerably agitated, the alarming transactions of the night before gave a subject for general consideration, and the mob seemed ready to renew the scenes of the preceding night; on that day I happened to be standing in company with some gentlemen in the street, who were speaking of the conduct of the mob, and the measures adopted to disperse them; among others present, was Counsellor King, who observed, that "In no instance ought a military body be resorted to until such time as the civil power proved insufficient"—just as the observation was made, Mr. John O'Connell joined us and he having heard the remark of Mr. King, replied to it, that "such conduct would not suit the purposes of a drunken magistrate, or a purse proud coxcomb." The latter epithet Mr. O'Connell acknowledged in the subsequent conversation, was applied to Mr. Bateman, (in consequence of his tearing down the transparency the night before, and for which he has since made to Mr. B. a public and ample apology.) the former to me, and in that conversation used other expressions hurtful to my feelings. On the night of that day the town was again very much agitated, and the conduct of a furious mob, who paraded through the streets playing the most disloyal tunes, and affording serious grounds for apprehension to the loyal and peaceably disposed inhabitants, as well as the insults to individuals, the kindling of bonfires, and the partial illumination of some houses, rendered it necessary for me to postpone my feelings for personal insult, to what I conceived to be my duty for the preservation of the public tranquillity, which, with the co-operation of others of my brother magistrates, (among whom I wish it to be fully understood I do not include Mr. O'Connell) we then accomplished. Having so far endeavoured to discharge my public duties, my next object was to obtain reparation for the UNWARRANTED and UNFOUNDED aspersions which Mr. O'Connell thought proper to attach to me, for which purpose I sent my friend Rowland Egar, Esq. to require a satisfactory explanation from Mr. O'Connell, and and accordingly requested of Thomas Blennerhassett, Esq. to wait on Mr. O'Connell, and demand from him a satisfactory apology or a meeting, when and where he pleased to appoint—to which message Mr. O'Connell, not probably recollecting the terms on which he solicited a postponement of three months, replied, that "he would not give a meeting to Mr. Blennerhassett, conceiving that he had no claim on him having twice broken an appointment" Such are the circumstances of an affair which it now becomes necessary to give general publicity to, for the purpose of explaining the motives which induce that gentleman to refuse me satisfaction for language equally FALSE AS UNGENTLEMANLIKE.

I am, Sir, &c.
