

other officer, t upset, and tenant Clap, and sup on board er, were too d, but died ring the ref Bunrana, lect forming ly was com- nual on such tleman bore nd men, and Lieutenant as about 25 o other im-

music Regi- ings, Strand, and Dro- e diocese of Tuesday, and romore, Dro- small atten- ring persons romore, 150; n the Bishop as on their hurch.

the service rch in Cork, ntary break- n an address leman, refer- blishment of ade the first poor district inhabitants nolics, either ng the entire own to be a never treated received a r, on one oc- sman, which poke to him when I was sorry—I am d I. “I am us of whiskey plan of hold- s during the rsons as may on, and find he rite on the

L.C. Church) order of the as a day of . Alphonsus. a Pontifical d by an im- been expelled

lding fund of Church took sell on Thurs- day, won the ter Park, won Limerick, the chemisette of cambric. The coloured bands and ruches are sometimes replaced by bouquets embroidered in wool, or braided either with white braid, or, what is still prettier, in coloured wool or braid; and this trifling has the advantage of washing with the dress. There is nothing very novel in the make of dresses this month. The robe Beatrix is, perhaps, the favourite, and certainly deserves to be so, as it gives height to the figure and smallness to the waist. It has only one flounce at the bottom of the skirt, but this flounce is put on according to fancy; often raised at the sides and forming a train behind. In tarlartin and Cambray gauze this dress is charming for evening dress. Sea side dress should be more remarkable for elegance than richness; therefore tulle illusion and crêpe are generally considered out of place. We must, however, make exceptions to this rule, as at some of our watering places crêpe is carried to a complete equality. For instance a distinguished visitor to the baths at Baden recently took with her a great variety of evening dresses, some of which were exceedingly rich and elegant. One was a robe of blue tulle, raised all round in shells, formed of blue satin and blonde. Low body, with berthe and sleeves trimmed to match. The head dress to accompany this robe was formed of two light feathers, falling over the shoulders, and a tuft of blue flowers on the summit of the head. We find that flounces are still in favour on thin dresses. The bodies of these light dresses are gradually made low, and fichus or pelerines worn with them. The sleeves are always wide, and ornamented to match the skirt. The under sleeves very large and trimmed with butterfly bows. With this style of dress, a small mantelet of the same is often worn out of doors. That which meets with the greatest success is the scarf, with broad, and very short square ends; simply trimmed with a flounce and heading, and bows of ribbon. The Finland hat is very fashionable just now. The brim of this hat falls a little to shade the eyes, with a bouquet of poppies and field flowers. We have also seen the Finland hat destined for the promenade at Baden, made of rice-straw, with cord of green velvet and straw, and bouquet of flowers, quite at the edge, so that it gives one the impression of falling off, but it must be left so, as that is really one charm in this graceful head-dress. The Finland hat, in Leghorn has a fall of black lace; this is fastened on the hat under a cord of straw, and black velvet, and tied in long bows behind. The same hat, made of English straw is trimmed in the same style, with ribbon of black silk, with a bouquet of blush roses, on which was placed a butterfly formed of precious stones. The Tudor hat, edged with velvet, and trimmed with a long curled feather at the side, and pompon in front, is also very fashionable, and exceedingly becoming to most faces. But our modistes have not been unmindful of those who still prefer bonnets, and great taste is displayed with regard to them. For example—a rich straw bonnet, with soft crown of tulle. Blonde curtain over mauve silk. The front lined with mauve, and at the side a rosette of blonde, from which falls a bunch of mauve flowers. Another small bunch of the same flowers inside the bonnet on the opposite side. A crinoline bonnet, lined with pink silk, and trimmed a long white feather, tinted with pink, and placed just under the brim, falls over, and reaches to the curtain. Coiffures for the sea side and country are made of flowers and lace, and many with black ribbon and lace. For the present, garden flowers are the most fashionable, mixed with long grass.—Bunches of mixed flowers and diadems are still worn; and these bunches of mixed flowers, arranged by a skilful hand, have all the harmony of nature. Orange blossom, for bridal wreaths, seems likely to be superseded by white lilac, which is a far more elegant and becoming flower, and can be arranged with more grace.

to Lota, daughter of Thomas Wensley Bond, Esq., Stephen's-green, Dublin.

At St. James's Roman Catholic Church, Dublin, Mr. Matthew Duffy, of Thomas-street, to Harriette, daughter of the late Luke Duffy, Esq., of Naas.

At St. Peter's Church, Dublin, the Rev. Morgan Woodward Jellett, to Rebecca Low, daughter of Nicholas W. Monsarratt, Esq., of Summerhill.

In Belfast, the Rev. Richard Irvine, Curate of Glenavy, to Fanny, daughter of Robert Stewart, Esq., M.D., Resident Physician of the Belfast District Hospital for the Insane.

In London, Orme Lundy Fry, Esq., son of John Fry, Esq., of Boyle, to Sophie Garrett, daughter of the late Charles M'Carthy, Esq., of Clonmel.

At Waterleigh, William Jones, jun., Frome-bridge, Bristol, to Harriett, daughter of the late Robert M'Dowell, Esq., of Clifton.

In Liverpool, William son of the late William Anderson, Esq., of Dublin, to Mary, daughter of the late Captain Jellard, formerly of St. John's, Newmarketland.

At All Hallows Church, Exeter, R. H. Dyas, Esq., Lieut., 4th Bengal European Infantry, to Helen, daughter of the late Richard Lee, Esq.

At St. Mary's, Bryanston-square, London, the Earl of Mexborough to Agnes Louisa Elizabeth, daughter of the late John Raphael, Esq.

At St. George's, Hanover-square, London, Robert Tempest Ricketts, Esq., son of Sir Cornwallis Ricketts, Bart., to Amelia Helen, daughter of John Stewart, Esq., of Dalguise, Perthshire.

At St. George's, Hanover-square, London, Lord Augustus H. C. Hervey, son of the Marquis of Bristol, to Mariana, daughter of the late H. P. Hodnett, Esq., and widow of Ashton Benyon, Esq., 63rd Regt.

At St. Peter's Church, Eaton-square, London, Wm. Hicks, son of the late Sir John Slade, Bart., to Cecilia Louisa, daughter of the late Sir Charles Des Voeux, Bart.

At Trinity Church, Bath, Thomas Reynolds Griffith, Esq., H.M.'s Indian Army, to Julia, daughter of the late Lieutenant-General Thomas Wemyss, C.B., 17th Foot.

At Clifton, the Rev. G. F. Wright, Fellow of Corpus Christi College, Cambridge, to Georgina, daughter of Commander G. Courtney Greenway, R.N.

At Charlottetown, British America, M. Holm, Esq., son of Colin Holm, Esq., Member of Congress, to Mary, daughter of Thomas Stewart, Esq., Londonderry.

At Grenada, West Indies, Henry Sharpe, Esq., Provost-Marshal, son of the Hon. Henry Edward Sharpe, Chief Justice of St. Vincent, to Frances Elizabeth, daughter of the Hon. Wm. D. Davis, Chief Justice of Grenada.

DEATHS.

On Wednesday evening, at Ballyglass, county Tipperary, sincerely regretted by her relatives and friends, Bessy, eldest daughter of Thomas Parker, Esq. She died rejoicing in the hope of salvation, through the merits of Christ, her Redeemer. Her remains were interred this morning in the family vault, Castle-town, in the same county.

On Monday, the 29th July, at South Parade, Cork, where she had removed from Galway for change of air, Mrs. Edward Townsend, wife of Edward Townsend, Esq., Professor of Engineering, Queen's College, Galway. The deceased was daughter to the late Robert Dudley Perse, Esq., of Dominick-street, Dublin, and was in her 20th year.

In Brooklyn, on the 14th July, Eliza J., youngest daughter of the late John T. Conway, formerly of Limerick.

At Passage, Mr. Timothy Flavin, of Cork.

At Queenstown, Mr. Michael Graham.

At Kingstown, Alicia Mary, the infant daughter of Andrew Connolly, Esq., Clunagh House, King's County.

Drowned, while bathing in the River Liffey, near Clane, Theodosia Talbot Caulfield, daughter of the Rev. W. Caulfield, rector of Clane.

At Kimmage Lodge, county Dublin, Phillis Emma Davy, daughter of the late Edmund Davy, Esq.

At Dundalk, Laurence Cahill, Esq., an extensive merchant of that town.

At Loughgall, Elizabeth, relict of Jacob Orr, Esq.

At Maynooth, Maria Josephena, daughter of Mr. Michael Furlong.

At Ramsgate, Robert Denby Woodfield, late Inspector-General of H.M.'s Customs.

At Southampton, George Abercromby Mitchell, Esq., Member of the Council of the Island of Grenada.

At Aberdeen, Elizabeth Stewart, widow of the late Captain John Clyde, of the Royals.

Suddenly, at Southsea, Commander John A. Bathurst, R.N.

At Marlborough, Admiral the Hon. Sir Fitzwood Pellew, G.C.B., K.C.H., son of the late Admiral Viscount Exmouth, G.C.B.

At Dundee, the Lady Jane Ogilby.

At Hampstead-road, London, Charles, son of the late Major George B. Phillipson, H.R.I.C.S.

At Reading, Catherine, wife of Sir Thomas Wathen Waller, Bart.

At Upton, near Southampton, Major-General John Swinburne.

On passage from Calcutta to England, Sir Albert John de Hochepled Larpent, Bart.